THE WEEKLY NEWSMAGAZINE

The cover of TIME magazine features a religious-themed illustration. In the foreground, a large, realistic portrait of an older man with white hair and a serious expression, identified as Baptist President Theodore Adams, looks directly at the viewer. Behind him, a smaller figure of a man in a white robe stands in a body of water, looking up at a pair of large, pale hands reaching down from a bright, cloudy sky. The hands are positioned as if about to bless or create something. The overall scene is set against a blue sky and water, with a white dove visible in the distance. The title 'TIME' is at the top, and the subtitle 'THE WEEKLY NEWSMAGAZINE' is below it. The name 'BAPTIST PRESIDENT THEODORE ADAMS' is at the bottom left.
